Back to School, Forward to Greatness:
Nurturing Leaders of Tomorrow

Dear Learners,

Welcome back to school!

I hope each one of you had a joyful and rejuvenating summer break—filled with laughter, exploration, rest, and reflection. Vacations offer us the much-needed pause to reconnect with ourselves, spend time with our families, and return with renewed energy and fresh perspectives. And now, as we step into a brand-new term, it's time to channel that renewed spirit into growth, learning, and excellence.

At DPS Siddharth Vihar, every academic year brings with it fresh opportunities—not only to excel in academics but also to grow as compassionate, thoughtful, and empowered individuals. As educators, our vision has always gone beyond textbooks and tests. We firmly believe in the motto: “Creating Leaders for Tomorrow.” Leaders not just in titles or positions, but leaders in thought, action, and character.

It is this belief that inspired us to initiate the Leadership Camps—a unique platform where learning stepped out of the classroom and took the shape of experience, dialogue, and real-world simulation. Through this carefully curated camp, many of you discovered what it means to lead—not just others, but yourself. You learned the importance of listening before speaking, collaborating instead of competing, and rising after setbacks. You understood that leadership is rooted in humility, responsibility, discipline, and empathy.

The camps were not merely events—they were a journey. A journey that marked the beginning of many of your leadership stories.

It is heartening to see so many of you stepping out of your comfort zones, taking initiative, and growing in confidence and vision.

As we move forward into the new term, I urge each one of you to carry the lessons of the Leadership Camp in your heart. Leadership is not about always being in the spotlight—it is often about lifting others into it. It is about being honest when no one is watching, working hard even when results are far, and being kind in a world that sometimes forgets compassion.

Let this term be a canvas on which you paint your ambitions, your actions, and your values. Set goals for yourself—not just academic ones—but also goals to be better friends, better teammates, and better citizens of your school and community.

Remember, every small act of responsibility, courage, or kindness is a step towards becoming the leader you are meant to be.

Together, let us make this year a celebration of effort, achievement, and growth. The future belongs to you—and it starts here, with each decision you make, each challenge you embrace, and each value you uphold.

Wishing you a wonderful, productive, and inspiring school term ahead.

Let's make it count!

Warm regards,
Ms. Vandana Midha
